

Modern Slavery Prevention Procedure

1 Purpose

To outline the University's processes for identifying, assessing, managing and reporting Modern Slavery risks within its operations and supply chains in accordance with the Modern Slavery Act 2018 (Cth) (the Act).

2 Scope

This procedure applies to all University Members, Students, University Partners, and entities owned or controlled by the University.

3 Procedure Overview

This procedure outlines the processes for identifying, assessing, managing and reporting Modern Slavery risks within the University's operations and supply chains.

The term Modern Slavery is used to describe situations where coercion, threats or deception are used to exploit victims and undermine or deprive them of their freedom. It is a criminal offence under Division 270 and 271 of the Criminal Code Act 1995 (Cth) and is a violation of fundamental human rights.

The Act defines Modern Slavery as including eight types of serious exploitation:

- Trafficking in persons;
- Slavery;
- Servitude;
- Forced marriage;
- Forced labour;
- Debt bondage;
- Deceptive recruiting for labour or services; and
- The worst forms of child labour.

Modern Slavery does not include practices such as substandard working conditions or underpayment of workers. However, these practices are also illegal, harmful, and may be present in some situations of Modern Slavery.

4 Procedures

All University Members, Students, University Partners, and entities owned or controlled by the University must consider the potential for Modern Slavery risks in the University's operations and supply chains and minimise the potential of Modern Slavery by reporting any concerns or complaints in accordance with Section 4.4 of this procedure.

Walk Free, an international human rights group focussed on the eradication of Modern Slavery, produces the Global Slavery Index, a report providing national estimates of Modern Slavery for 160 countries. It provides a country-by-country breakdown, sharing insights into Modern Slavery prevalence by geographical location, the level of action governments are taking to address the issue, as well as identifying high-risk products and industries. Information from the Global Slavery Index and other sources including anti-slavery not-for-profit groups is used to inform the University's Modern Slavery prevention activities and has been incorporated into resources such as the University's Annual Compliance Training.

4.1 Identification

In giving effect to its obligations under the Act, and to its principles and values, the University is committed to combating Modern Slavery through the following objectives.

1. Increasing awareness and minimising the potential of Modern Slavery in University business activities. A Modern Slavery awareness learning module is included as part of the University's Annual Compliance Training - a mandatory training program designed to ensure that all University Employees are aware of their responsibilities as an Employee, and the aspects of the Act which are applicable to their employment at UniSQ.
2. Supporting University Members and line managers to consider Modern Slavery risks in the University's operations, supply chains, geographical locations, and sectors/industries, with specific guidance sought through the University's Modern Slavery Working Group or appropriate University functions as necessary. In accordance with the Enterprise Risk Management Procedure, line managers will manage operational risks within their areas of responsibility and refer any Modern Slavery risks to the University's Modern Slavery Working Group for incorporation into the Modern Slavery Risk Register.
3. Reviewing the Modern Slavery Risk Register, at least annually, to identify new and emerging risks and liaising with relevant University stakeholders to identify suitable controls for mitigating such risks.
4. Supporting the University's Modern Slavery Working Group to liaise with key stakeholders to improve education, awareness and risk management activities, facilitating engagement through risk workshops, training, and University-wide communications.

5. Supporting the University's Modern Slavery Working Group to consult with the Senior Leadership Group and other key stakeholders to develop the annual Modern Slavery Statement, to be approved by the University Council and submitted to the Modern Slavery Statements Register by 30 June each year. The prescriptive process for developing the University's Modern Slavery Statement is provided in the Finance and Business Solutions' local procedure 'Preparation of the Annual Modern Slavery Statement'.

4.2 Assessment

The University will undertake appropriate assessment of risks including due diligence of Contractors, Suppliers and University Partners, and will assess any Modern Slavery risks identified during operational activities. This may include concerns or complaints reported to the University which will be managed in accordance with Section 4.4 of this procedure.

Due diligence activities may include, but are not limited to, supplier questionnaires, risk assessments, contract management activities, and maintaining awareness of industry and legislative updates pertaining to Modern Slavery.

Any third-party requests for information related to the University's approach to Modern Slavery will be referred to the University's Modern Slavery Working Group for completion. This may include requests such as supplier questionnaires.

4.3 Management

The University, through its line managers, will implement suitable controls for Modern Slavery risks identified within their areas of responsibility, and refer any risks beyond the scope of their responsibility to the University's Modern Slavery Working Group and their senior leaders, as appropriate. Any identified risks and proposed controls will be incorporated into the Modern Slavery Risk Register and the University's annual Modern Slavery Statement as appropriate.

University Employees, and other key stakeholders at the University's request, will undertake Modern Slavery training on an annual basis through the University's Annual Compliance Training module (or an equivalent alternative), and participate in risk identification and management activities.

4.4 Reporting

Modern Slavery concerns or complaints reported to the University should first ensure the safety of the persons involved. Actions taken should be in the best interest of the suspected victim/s and the University must take all reasonable steps to obtain consent from the victim prior to involvement of third parties.

Matters involving the University should be reported in accordance with the University's Complaints Management Procedure, taking into consideration whether there is an immediate risk to the victim's safety, and any additional reporting obligations under the Public Interest Disclosure Procedure and/or legislative requirements. Circumstances which do not involve the University should be reported to the Australian Federal Police.

All Modern Slavery concerns or complaints reported to the University will be triaged by the Director (Integrity and Professional Conduct) (which should also be assessed under the University's Corrupt Conduct and Public Interest Disclosure regulator obligations), and when appropriate, forwarded to the University's Modern Slavery Working Group and relevant University Members (as required) for investigation in accordance with the University's Modern Slavery Remediation Process.

Upon completion of the investigation, appropriate actions will be implemented to rectify substantiated issues involving the University, with appropriate controls put in place to prevent further occurrences.

Depending on the nature of the concern or complaint, the Director (Integrity and Professional Conduct) or University's Modern Slavery Working Group will notify the Vice-Chancellor's Executive of potential or actual risks, and the outcomes of the investigation. If required, and subject to the person's safety and informed consent, and compliance with lawful disclosure requirements, the Vice-Chancellor (or nominee) will notify appropriate external agencies of the issues identified and take further action as necessary. Such de-identified information will also be included in the University's annual Modern Slavery Statement.

Further guidance on how to respond to a suspected case of Modern Slavery can be found in Appendix 3 of the Commonwealth Modern Slavery Act 2018 Guidance for Reporting Entities.
