

Recognition and Reward Policy

1 Purpose

To outline the principles for recognising and rewarding Employees.

2 Scope

This Policy applies to all Employees.

3 Policy Statement

The University will provide opportunities to recognise and reward exceptional Employee service, performance, and achievement to increase the engagement, commitment, and productivity of Employees. All Employees are encouraged to recognise their colleagues and the positive contributions they make to the workplace.

4 Principles

The University is committed to recognising and rewarding Employees:

- through a shared responsibility between the University, the Employee, and the Supervisor.
- using both formal and informal approaches across the entire University, within a Division, or within a specific organisational unit.
- by formally recognising Employees who provide long-term years of service to the University.
- with a focus on contributions to the realisation of the University's Strategic Plan (including University values) and with a focus on quality (impact).
